HARRISON AT HOME.

The President Working Hard on His Correspondence.

Chauncey Huston Receives an Ovation from Home Friends.

Republican Orators Attend a Banquet at Delmonico's.

Kansas Claims to be the Banner Republican State.

Politics at Indianapolis.

INDIANAPOLIS, November 14.—General Harrison put in the day hard at work trying to reduce his accumulated correspondence, and keeping two stenographers going all the time. There is about [illegible] the volume of letters right [illegible]. A number of bulletins and other incidentals of the campaign are being sent him [illegible]. As official returns come in from all parts of Election [illegible] it is estimated about $200,000 changed hands in Indianapolis, and one of the best posted betting men in the state, who participated actively in the campaign, estimates that not less than a million dollars was wagered on the result in the state of Indiana. Local democrats are consoled by winning [illegible] from enthusiastic republicans on this election, which went for Cleveland by a plurality of 470.

Another damage suit growing out of the election was filed today against United States Marshal Hawkins, claiming $5,000 for large [illegible]. This makes fully a dozen suits filed against the marshal for arrests made by his deputies. Damages are asked aggregating about $200,000.

Chauncey M. Huston returned from his home at Connersville today, fresh from ovations tendered him by his home friends, which were the most flattering recognition ever paid any campaign manager. Not less than 10,000 people greeted him with ringing ovations, concluding at night in a grand ratification meeting at which he was the central figure.

Republican Orators Banqueted.

WASHINGTON, November 14.—Six thousand republicans hearing all the accessories of a political procession marched to night in honor of the election of General Harrison to the presidency.

NEW YORK, November 14.—Republican campaign orators to night filled the main hall of Delmonico's brim full of enthusiasm in celebration of the success of their efforts in the late campaign. Covers were laid for 200 guests. Chauncey M. Depew presided. The speakers assigned were Colonel Shepherd of the Mail and Express, J. S. Wise, Colonel Geo. A. Sheridan, W. D. Guthrie, and Bob. P. Porter of the Press. Letters of regret were received from Gen. Benj. Harrison and Hon. Levi P. Morton.

The Kansas State.

TOPEKA, Kas., November 14.—Official returns from all but fifteen counties have been received. These with the official figures from the fifteen counties which have not yet reported place the republican plurality at 82,040, making Kansas the largest republican state of the union.

A Belgian Riot.

BRUSSELS, November 14.—Explosion of fire damp in a mine at Dour. Thirty miners were killed.

Later dispatches say 32 persons were killed. At the time of the explosion there were 80 men in the pit, and out of that number [illegible] escaped alive.

Murder at Denver.

DENVER, November 14.—N. D. Vaughn, a blacksmith, was murdered in cold blood in front of the Palace theatre, a variety on Blake street, at 7 this morning. Vaughn was on his way to work and stepped into the saloon attached to the theatre for a cigar. While there a quarrel arose between several all night loungers, and Vaughn interfered to restore peace. One man named Anderson, followed Vaughn to the street and shot him through the head, killing him instantly. Anderson and his companions are in jail. The most sensational feature of the tragedy is that it was just a year ago to day that Chas. Henry, a young Canadian gambler in a fit of jealousy murdered a young variety actress from Kansas City named Ellie Moore.

DENVER, November 14.—Peter Anderson, the man who and his companions, together with his companions, claims that the killing was in self defense, that Vaughn struck Anderson over the head several times with a cane.

An Interesting Decision.

WASHINGTON, November 14.—The supreme court through Chief Justice Fuller has rendered an opinion of unusual interest to holders of life insurance policies. Thomas L. Hume of the District of Columbia died in 1881, totally insolvent, but leaving $35,000 in life insurance policies. The policies were by their terms payable to the widow or children of the deceased. The administrators and trustees of the Hume estate sought to force the application of the proceeds of the policies to the payment of debts due the creditors, on the ground that the premiums paid by Hume were by fraudulent transfer of an insolvent estate. The supreme court holds that [illegible] premiums are common law [illegible] of policies without any deduction whatever on account of premiums paid, holding that a husband and father has a full right to insure [illegible] the interest of his wife and children, and where such policies are effected in the name of the beneficiaries the [illegible] part of the estate of the deceased husband and therefore cannot injure [illegible] the fraudulent investment of any part of the estate when so effected.

Election Arrests.

ST. LOUIS, November 14.—Advices from Little Rock, Ark., say Charles C. Reid of Thos. Harvey & J. L. Lucas, Wm. Hyde and James Palmer were brought to that city from Conway county by the U. S. marshal charged with interfering with the election held in Plummerville in that county. These are prominent citizens and the arrests have created quite a sensation. It is claimed the ballot box at Plummerville was stuffed by masked men on the night of November 6.

Loss of a British Steamer.

LONDON, November 14.—The British steamer Black Watch foundered November 12th in latitude 50 n, longitude 8 west. The fate of the crew is unknown. She was an iron screw steamer, 936 tons, sailed October 20th from Naples for Odessa, probably returning from Odessa when she foundered.

Arkansas Congressmen.

ST. LOUIS, November 14.—Advices from Little Rock, Ark., say returns from the second congressional district give Breckinridge (dem.) 682 majority over Clayton (republican). Gen. Dunnington is undoubtedly elected over Pentecost, independent.

The American Cup.

NEW YORK, November 14.—The American cup committee convened today with closed doors. Business under discussion is the question of increase of weight and licensing of jockeys. No eastern club is represented. It is believed overtures will be made looking to such representation.

An Absconder Wanted.

DENVER, November 14.—Today ex-Senator Tabor offered a reward of $5,000 for the arrest of George Bacon, formerly postmaster at Meeker, Colo. Mr. Tabor was bondsman for Bacon, who absconded in the summer of '87, leaving Tabor to settle with the government for several thousand dollars.

Loss of a British Steamer.

LONDON, November 14.—The British steamer Black Watch foundered November 12th in latitude 50 n, longitude 8 west. The fate of the crew is unknown. She was an iron screw steamer, 936 tons, sailed October 20th from Naples for Odessa, probably returning from Odessa when she foundered.

Indians.

OTTAWA, ONT., November 14.—Reports said to have been transmitted to the Indians of British Columbia by Chinese. The department of agriculture has not received official advice on the subject, but it is [illegible] will be made to see whether the disease really exists on the Pacific coast.

A Mortgage Released.

DENVER, November 14.—The $25,000 mortgage recently given by the Chicago Lumber company of Kansas and which brought on attachment suits to the amount of several thousand dollars, was to day released by the holders. It is represented [illegible] permit the company to so adjust their affairs as to be able to [illegible] business.

Antagonizes Canadians.

OTTAWA, November 14.—Lord Stanley, governor general of Canada, came out openly against the annexation sentiment in Canada. Replying to an address of welcome from French Canadians he declared that Canadians were as loyal as free born citizens of the United States, while freed from the disturbances of constantly recurring elections.

Trouble in Mexico.

EL PASO, TEX., November 14.—Major Langan, who with a company of United States soldiers was arrested while hunting [illegible] yesterday, telegraphed the facts to the United States collector of customs here. He states that his arrest was made by gendarmes from Chihuahua, not customs officers. The Mexican collector of customs at Juarez telegraphed Chihuahua for an order for release and detained it.

Cattle from Mexico.

WASHINGTON, November 14.—On recommendation of the commission of agriculture the treasury department has modified its instructions of October 25 last so as to authorize the importation of cattle from Mexico at Laredo, Hereford and Buenos Ayres. Arizona Customs officers at those places have been instructed to act, as [illegible] under supervision of the veterinary surgeon of Arizona.

Twelve More Dead Found.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., November 14.—Twelve more bodies were uncarthed this morning in the ruins of Friday's fire, in addition to eleven taken out yesterday, which makes 33 dead accounted for. There are probably 10 or 12 yet in the ruins.

ROCHESTER, November 14.—Nine more bodies have been exhumed to night.

A Town in Danger.

ANDOVER, Dak., November 14.—A small prairie fire which started yesterday afternoon to the westward of the city has assumed alarming proportions. The wind is sweeping the flame through the tall dry caustic grass toward the city. The fire brigade is endeavoring to fight back the flames. It is greatly feared the town will be destroyed.

ANDOVER, Dak., November 14.—Reports from prairie fires in the northwestern townships of Brown county show active fighting upon the part of settlers [illegible] grain. The worst district includes a large area of thickly settled [illegible]. Several [illegible] some fatalities [illegible] severe experience in fighting the flames.

The Nicaragua Canal.

MONTPELIER, Vt., November 14.—An act incorporating the Nicaragua Canal company passed the legislature yesterday. It is the same act which was introduced in the United States senate last session by Edmunds. Acting on the advice of Edmunds who drew the bill, parties interested in the enterprise decided to ask the Vermont legislature for a charter. Several of the incorporators named in the act are Vermonters, including Frederick Billings and Colonel Franklin Fairbanks. The [illegible] named appeared before a joint legislature committee last week to testify concerning the proposed measure. The [illegible] of the enterprise stated that they were [illegible] with the [illegible] soon as a charter was obtained.

The Parnell Inquiry.

LONDON, Nov. 14.—While the hearing of [illegible] proceeding before the Parnell commission today, counsel for the Parnellites complained of the bad effect on his clients in the case of parading such a great amount of crime ascribed to the action of the league while the evidence to [illegible] the [illegible] and the outrages was very slight. A limit ought to be put on the amount of evidence admitted. Presiding Justice Hannen said the commission could form an opinion upon whether the persons against whom the charges made could be connected with the outrages. They would be unworthy of the position if unable to keep their minds in a state of equilibrium upon this point. He hoped, however, it would be found possible to curtail the amount of evidence of this kind. Attorney General Webster then read a long list of outrages. Adjourned.

KNIGHTS OF LABOR.

Reports of General Officers Laid Before the Convention.

A Great Fall Off in Membership During the Year.

Finances of the Organization Are in a Bad Shape.

Mrs. Barry Exposes Evils which Afflict Working Women.

Report of Secretary Powderly.

INDIANAPOLIS, November 14.—The Knights of Labor convention assembled this morning and took up the reports of general officers. Secretary Powderly's report deals with the present and the future.

The report of Treasurer Turner for the year ending June 30th last shows receipts $212,000, expenditures the same. Receipts per capita assessment $38,000. Increase in membership 60,000. Turner says due to certain decisions about three hundred thousand dollars of the per capita tax during the past year and at the present time receipts are not sufficient to meet the necessary expenses. He recommends cutting down the staff of general officers. Other recommendations to the amount of $25,000 by reason of the general falling off in membership and the door hanging over the order. The delegates are feeling rather blue, considering what the outcome will be. At the end of June, 1887, the order was several thousand dollars ahead. Of this condition one year later Turner says "June 30, 1888 our balance was $16,000, July [illegible] $8,000, August $9,000, and unpaid October 31 [illegible] which will leave a balance of $46 with $1,067 due and unpaid bills."

Mrs. A. M. Barry, general investigator of women's work and wages, gave an interesting resume of her labors with suggestions toward the amelioration of woman's lot.

The report of the general executive board is a voluminous document, containing an account of all matters acted on by the board.

Mrs. Barry gives the price paid women and girls in various parts of the country visited, and describes the disadvantages under which they work. She found [illegible] she says, the organization was in deplorable disruption, and after expressing her inability and fear to deal with women employed in the industries she says: "But of one or two classes of toilers I would like to speak in hopes that the Knights of Labor or [illegible] association may devise [illegible] way or means to overcome, prohibit or restrict by legislation, if necessary, the compulsory use of [illegible] in the goods which in my judgment is most practical one of the most repulsive, pernicious and degrading to public good systems that afflict our country to day. I speak of the contract sweating system, which [illegible] as follows: Contracts are [illegible] about three months and

C. E. Aiken left the city last night for New Mexico, where he has gone for the purpose of procuring curiosities and Navajo blankets. Mr. Aiken may go down into Old Mexico if time permits and will be absent several weeks.

County Superintendent Berrey announces in another column that the regular quarterly examination of the teachers of El Paso county will begin at 10 o'clock Friday morning, November 30th, at his office in the court house. The work will require two days in completion. Teachers and others interested will do well to read the notice.

By order of Brigadier General [illegible] Assistant Inspector General, will visit this city next Monday night, November 19th, for the purpose of inspecting Company A. Captain Saxton is very anxious that all members of the company be present that evening as it is not only important to the company that they be there but important to the members themselves.

Marshal L. C. Dana is exhibiting at his office one of the finest pieces of crayon work ever brought to this city. It is a life size portrait of himself and is a very fine picture. It is the gift of the "Excelsior Portrait Company" of, Chicago, and is given with the hope of introducing the work of the company in this city. It is certainly a fine portrait. Mr. Dana will place the picture on exhibition in one of the stores of the city.

Birdie Chapman, a young colored girl and a witness in an important criminal suit, has been trying to avoid the officers of the law for some days by secreting herself in a hole in the southern part of the city. Monday night Marshal Dana raided the house and took Birdie into custody and she languished in the city bastile until such a time as it is decided what is best to do with her.

The musicale to be held in the college [illegible] will be a grand success. One of the principal features of the programme will be the appearance of Miss Robinson of Denver for the first time in Colorado Springs. As the proceeds are to be devoted to improving the college grounds it is hoped that the entertainment will receive a liberal patronage from the public. Secure your tickets at the Consolidated Book store.

Next Sunday trains will be run on the Rock Island road to and from Denver and Pueblo. On Monday the regular trains between Chicago and this city will be put on. The time made by the fast train going east between this city and Chicago will be about forty hours and coming west it will be about forty two hours. The time made by the fast train between here and Denver will be two hours and thirty five minutes. This train will leave the D. & R. G. depot at eight o'clock in the morning and returning leave Denver at five o'clock, thus allowing a full day in that city.

The members of the city council are very much delighted with the success with which they have met in constructing the city sewers. They have not only built the main lines of the sewer, which it was originally supposed would cost $40,000, but for that sum have put in several additional lines. It was at first thought that the cost of the sewers as they will be when completed would aggregate $75,000. At the meeting of the council on Monday night the committee was instructed to let the contract for the line on the west side of Cascade avenue.

By the wording of an item in yesterday morning's paper the impression was conveyed that the agency for the Midland coal would be discontinued in this city. This is not the case, although the firm of C. A. Lansing & Co. will retire as the agents of the company. The demand upon the mines has been so great hitherto that they have been unable to supply this city properly; but the mines at New Castle will soon be shipping properly and a new vein will be opened in the Sunshine mine by December first so that the many persons in this city who prefer the Midland coal will not be long without it.

At the meeting of the trustees of Colorado college yesterday Mr. [illegible] Hamlin was unanimously elected to membership in the board. Rev. J. S. Black, Rev. Richard Montague and Rev. J. B. Greene were appointed a committee to arrange for the inauguration of President Slocum. It is proposed to make this an occasion one of large importance to those interested in higher education throughout the state. The committee on the new club house reported progress. A general feeling of hopefulness in regard to the affairs of the college was felt by all.

The Roswell school district has recently organized and votes thirteen thousand dollars worth of furniture has been ordered for the new school building. The county superintendent thinks there are fully fifty children of school age in the district.

RARE OLD PROVERBS.

SOME QUEER GEMS AND A VERY QUEER DEALER THEREIN

Mr. William Scott Downey, One of New York's Chief Eccentrics of the Long Ago—[illegible] Exercises Over the Old Book He Peddled.

[Special Correspondence.]

NEW YORK, No[illegible]—A diamond brok[illegible] ornamental leaves offered for sale a few days ago to a leading dealer in gems, one of the most remarkable precious stones that the world has ever seen. It was a diamond, of fine white color, and weighing [illegible] carats and handsomely cut, which had cracked into two equal parts, each containing about one-quarter of the original carats. The two parts, carefully fitted into a small, diamond ornamented setting, made a single shell of diamond. The natural shape was a pentahedron. The cutting was regular and perfect, as if they had been cut by a skillful lapidary. Superficially did this little diamond look like a matrix that it was, and had it not been for the cracks it would have been worth a fortune. The unpolished surfaces were put together. The unpolished ends of putting two diamonds together in such a way by art as to leave no question. It was the work of nature, but what natural law, or perversion of law, had such an amazing effect, was far beyond even the theorizing of those who inspected the stone. Mr. Isaacs wanted $1,000 for the puzzle. It is worth scarcely anything as a merely ornamental gem, but doubtless some wealthy collector will give for it, as a curiosity, the price asked and even more, perhaps.

High figures are sometimes commanded by oddities far out of proportion to their intrinsic worth, and a good illustration in point is the case of ex-Mayor Wickham's many years ago. ex-Mayor Wickham's father, who is the oldest diamond importer in New York, brought to this country and sold here for $500 a one carat diamond. The upper part of it was a brilliantly clear white diamond, the lower part a bright yellow, and no human eye, however expert or aided by glasses and reflectors, could tell where the white ended or the yellow began. Had it all been like its top it might have been worth $75 to $125, had it all been like its bottom, $50 to $75; lying what it was it readily sold for $500. Other diamonds are valuable for what can be seen in them; it was for what could not be seen—that blending line of color.

A curious specimen of what might be called a natural "alphabet" in diamonds, i. e., those showing two colors, though not so blended as in the Wickham diamond, [illegible] Wickham, a diamond dealer, on account of the late Rev. William Scott Downey. It had a fine brilliant cut, and the upper six-sevenths of it showed as clear white as was ever seen in a diamond, but the little seventh at the bottom, just a point, was of as cold green tint. Looked at from directly above that tint would not be suspected, and the many colored rays of light that scintillated from its facets seemed refracted from a pure white stone, but, laid in an angle of white paper to throw reflected light into its body, and, viewed from the side, the line where it met the white was distinctly to be seen.

The Rev. William Scott Downey, mentioned in the preceding paragraph, was, by the way, one of the most eccentric and widely known men in New York, and well worthy of [illegible]. He looked like an elf who had stepped out of a child's story book. Age had bowed his figure so that he walked bent, as the pictured Dorcas; he always wore a very long and ample coat, that looked as if the tatch of the fairy queen's wand might make it suddenly fly off and reveal him in quite another guise; and his wrinkled, yellow face, deep sunk and brilliantly sparkling black eyes ambushed beneath bushy overhanging white brows, the basic tone that seemed to have been put on softened into a blur at the end by forty locks, and capacious, then suddenly moving lips. The lower quite pendulous—all were moulded in a complicated and grotesque smile. His very abundant long hair and long beard were white as snow, so white as to suggest that he might have been an antique elf, among the elves which, it is known to be born old. The hat he always wore was a broad, soft slouch, that appeared to have the power of cocking itself into all sorts of funny shapes. But when he sat up straight and presented his full front to have his picture taken he was quite another person, and one could see him as he was, a genial, humorous, kindly-natured, good, intelligent, [illegible] and very able gentleman.

Many other people are dead, but probably very few, if any, so deaf as Downey was. If an eighty-ton gun had been fired off at his back he might have felt the concussion, but would not have heard the report, not hearing its own voice, he had no control over it, and it used to scamper and waddle, up and down, between falsetto and bass, in an amazing key that seriously handicapped his effective vocal speech of commercial truth.

WM. SCOTT DOWNEY.

The Rev. William Scott Downey was born somewhere in the West Indies, took naturally to piety at an early age and spent the best years of his life as a missionary in India and elsewhere. There can be no question, among any who knew him, of his sincerity in all that he professed, even in his belief of the divine inspiration of the "visions" he saw from time to time, and to which, they being all his own, he could adapt interpretations so charmingly. To help along the spread of universal goodness he put forth a small volume, which he entitled "Hogmeo's Proverbs." It is rather singular, by the way, that this little book, issued early in the fifties, and sold to the extent of at least 30,000 copies, is already quite rare, and the holders of such copies as exist treasure them as valuable. Mr. Downey had some curious characteristics. He was kind and generous to the poor and humble always, but he dearly loved rich people and persons of rank. His personal acquaintance here in New York included nearly every rich man in the city, and the same is said to have been true of his intimacy with the wealthy in many other places all over the world. He had a talent for giving jewels, rings, pins, brooches and unset precious stones to prominent men, leading bankers, statesmen and magnates in merchants and others could infinitely better have afforded to buy than he could to give them. When he gave to poor people his benefactions took the plain form of money in which he demonstrated his practical goodness. Upon all occasions when he bestowed gifts upon rich persons he carefully wrote down in a memorandum book just what the gift was and for what occasion. For instance:

May 17.—Gave to Mr. P. F. W. a ring set with a diamond weighing one carat, for which I paid $75. He said 'Thank you' put on his finger and did not say one word more.

In another case his book records, after such a gift as given above, that a lady to whom he gave a very pretty pearl brooch said "Oh! how lovely! How can I ever thank you enough? You are a dear good old man."

He was an intimate and devoted friend of Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Stewart, particularly the latter, but had for Judge Hilton all the detestation that his gentle nature was capable of. Many such memoranda are preserved by autograph letters to the recipients, he sent them with presentation couple of his books, shortly after which he was a greater man than Queen Victoria, whose brief note of thanks he valued above all his other earthly possessions and was very [illegible] of.

When he found his health and voice [illegible] failing [illegible] up the ministerial business [illegible] which he had employed himself since he had given [illegible] he became [illegible] into some occupation which would [illegible] him a perpetual delight [illegible] and precious stones. For [illegible] time he confined himself to [illegible] as it was [illegible] there [illegible] the Bible, [illegible] with [illegible] CITY OF [illegible] all [illegible] and [illegible] which the majority of people looked with [illegible] as persons that they were only carriages for [illegible].

Probably he got to having real sell the rubies, [illegible] and [illegible] but remember what has [illegible] by [illegible] sold at [illegible] and [illegible] except [illegible] some [illegible], for these it had cost him. From [illegible] point of view this [illegible] did not [illegible] what [illegible]. But it appointed to [illegible] him, and he was [illegible] with [illegible] several hundred dollars in his pocket, ready to buy anything that took his fancy. People used to wonder [illegible] where he got all his money. His attention to a leading jeweler, Mr. J. H. Johnston, who was a very old friend, was that he had made away with two large fishermen's [illegible] in the [illegible] years was going through a third, which would be ample for his time out. He bought a great deal of curious silverware, mostly antique pieces, all of which he gave away. Whether buying or selling or giving, the old man never lost a chance to proclaim himself "a servant of Jesus Christ," to urge what he believed to be religious truths upon all who would hear them and to admonish against the drinking of ardent spirits. Probably no better cycling to this sketch of his strange personality can be offered than by quotation of some example excerpts from his book of proverbs.

Here are some general ones:

"It is far better to be a porter in the fear of the Lord than a courtier in the fear of the devil."

"Feared love must soon become mortal hatred."

"Punctuality strengthens confidence and secures respect."

"Riches have benefited tens and ruined thousands."

"Law without justice is a wound without a cure."

"The difference between the humble minister of Jesus and the fashionable popular preacher is this: The former studies the pasturage for his flock; the latter, the transferability of their wool."

"An eastern bashaw once complained that he had no shoes, but when he saw a man without feet he was content."

"Rum intoxicates the liquor; love the amicous; and prosperity the fool."

"As a crowded stomach retards digestion, so does prosperity retard charity."

"The harsh language of an angry man is the nasty scum of his soul."

He had made some study of motion, evidently, for he wrote:

"The tongue of the slanderer is deadly poison; and the voice of the scold gloomy."

"Rather be pricked by a dart than by the tongue of a wife."

"World-wonders be as silent in most things as they are in telling their age, men would be far wiser and courts of justice less frauduleut."

[illegible] as much prudence as does the vanity we should find many husbands far happier.

"Scolding wives, like bad clocks, are seldom in order."

"A prudent woman studies the comfort of her husband and household, whereas a sordid and unfaithful thinks of parties and finery."

"Marriage is the comfort of the celibate and prudent. For the torment of the impatient and [illegible] it is hell."

"What sin has been the fruit of one woman may be the fault of another."

"Most fashionable ladies are as diamonds—costly, rare and exceedingly useless."

"Be not thunder in the voice of the cold, but the music of Apollo's lute in the language of the amiable spouse; the former wounds but the latter heals."

"Most would act as if they were bound to wound; and not to heal."

"It is easier to make a plain tale plausible than to convince an obstinate one that she is in fault."

"To neglect a wife's pleasure is to create a storm; but to grant her request is to remain tranquil."

"The obedience of a wife to her husband is loyalty to a sovereign and submission to God."

"As a mushroom is an ungraceful is a shrew in a costly establishment."

As has been suggested, Mr. Downey was no friend to "the flowing bowl," and he put himself on record about it thus:

"Those who sink into the sea can be lost to time; but all who sink by strong drink are lost to eternity."

"To seek for tee-totallers at a gin shop, [illegible] from wives to [illegible] [illegible] of persons refusing tithes."

"The use of strong drinks, to most persons, is as pills of arsenic disguised in a hock cordial; although palatable at first, it is ruin at last."

"The contrast which exists between the sloth-ness is man and the drunkard is this: the former governs his affairs, and the affairs of the latter govern him."

And here is a fine old incendiary sentiment to wind up with:

"Beauty, like riches, has been productive of much evil than good."

The future usefulness of the Knights of Labor as an organization must depend largely upon the spirit in which their convention now in session in Indianapolis meets the new questions facing it in the presence of altered conditions.

With the exception of General Grant, Harrison will receive more electoral votes than any other republican president. Lincoln received 180 in 1860 and 212 in 1864. Grant received 214 in 1868 and 286 in 1872. Hayes received 185, and Garfield 214. Cleveland had 219 in 1884.

Mrs. Barry made some startling revelations in her address before the Knights of Labor convention yesterday, but she did not exaggerate the vicious practices of the contracting middlemen. The Knights of Labor would do a work of incalculable good if they can devise some plan to do away with this monstrous evil.

Harvard college is fitting out an astronomical expedition to go to Peru for the purpose of making a ... let survey of the southern heavens. This work has been in contemplation for a year or more but preparations for it were only lately begun. The report of this expedition will be a valuable addition to astronomical literature.

One of the notable features of the late election was the prominent part United States marshals took in it everywhere. The interference of these officials to secure an honest ballot in 1876 was loudly denounced by the democratic press and people throughout the land. It was all right this year though because the marshals were all good democrats.

President Cleveland clearly demonstrated that his authority was supreme in the convention which nominated Hill in New York a few months ago. It may now be a matter of regret to the president that he did not use this authority to prevent Hill's nomination. This probably would not have saved Mr. Cleveland from failure but it would have saved him from the humiliation of seeing Hill triumphant in victory while he faces a crushing defeat.

It now seems probable that the Ute Indians will be removed from their present reservation in the southwestern part of the state to Utah at an early day. Since the land surrounding the reservation has become settled by the whites game has become scarce, and this with other reasons have made many of the chiefs anxious for the change. This removal will throw open for settlement several thousand acres of valuable land.

General Harrison is the first president to enter upon the duties of that office since the law was passed bringing cabinet officers into the line of succession. The death of both the president and vice president during their terms of office is a calamity which has never come to this country, but it is a contingency which the next cabinet will have to consider. In deciding his advisers General Harrison will undoubtedly have some regard for their presidential qualifications.

The Czar of Russia is evidently determined that there shall be no recurrence of railway accidents to imperial trains. He has punished every man from a section hand to the minister of railways who was either directly or indirectly connected with the accident. The minister of railways, who does not seem to have been in the least responsible, has been dismissed from his office for criminal negligence. As the New York Tribune suggests, it might be well to require future railway ministers to ride on the cow catchers of imperial trains.

Mr. Phelps, our minister to England, has won golden opinions during his stay abroad as the following complimentary notice in the London Times one day last week will testify to. "We feel sincerely sorry Mr. Cleveland's defeat ... necessarily involve the retirement from this country of the present minister for the United States. Mr. Phelps has performed his duties at the American legation with marked ability and adroitness and without failing to maintain the claims of his own country has won the esteem of English statesmen by his geniality, his fair mindedness and his intelligent interest in English affairs. He has made many friends here, and no enemy."

The result of the election does not furnish much encouragement to the campaign liar. The Indianapolis Journal thus sums up the effects of the campaign lies about General Harrison which were elaborated with such great care and circulated at great expense. The Chinese lie evidently did not hurt him where it was expected to as he carried the Pacific coast states by increased majorities. The Condon lie about Irish Americans seems to have had no effect and in Brooklyn, ... where Gordon lives, his own precinct which has always given seventy five to one hundred democratic majority, gave only nineteen this year. It is a strong Irish American precinct. The dollar a day lie was only believed by a class of ignorant and prejudiced voters who are democratic anyhow. The "greenback clique" lie, which was a malicious distortion of a harmless remark, did not prevent workingmen in Michigan from voting for General Harrison and helping to swell his majority to 21,000.

Colorado College.

To the Editor of the Gazette:

No one heartily interested in the welfare of this city and commonwealth can fail to have read with sincere satisfaction the article of Mr. Black and the editorial remarks upon it in Wednesday's GAZETTE. The ... of families is daily increasing who have come from the splendid educational opportunities of long settled eastern communities and the parents are soon forced to inquire "What shall we do with our sons and daughters?" Public or private schools now or for a time, but the college specially becomes an imperative need. Our situation is ideal, our present equipment for instruction under the leadership of our new president is most inspiring. We can and we must build here a worthy institution of higher learning.

It has been suggested that it is impossible to awaken general enthusiasm in behalf of a sectarian institution. If Colorado college were sectarian in any objectionable sense, this remark would have force. But no theological or ecclesiastical tests, are, so far as I am aware, applied to its faculty. Its students subscribe to no creed, are restricted to no special church, are taught no special religious dogmas. Since my acquaintance with the college Congregationalists, Baptists, Presbyterians, Episcopalians, Unitarians and ... Catholics have found congenial atmosphere within its walls. The college does give itself out to be, and as the years go on this will be found to be a great secret of the success we believe it is to attain, distinctly Christian. It does propose to seek the development of a sound, Christian manhood and womanhood. It does believe the training of character to be more important than the training of intellect. But this is not sectarianism. Colorado college is no more sectarian than Harvard or Yale universities. There are a few institutions of higher learning in this country—and they are very few—which were not born of some definite religious or church denominational support. Oberlin is one of these. But President White of Cornell university urgently inviting a distinguished preacher to address the students on a specified Sunday said: "We must have Christian preaching here in the interests of intellectual activity." And President Adams publicly avows his purpose to make Cornell a Christian university. Now the founders of Colorado college, and those who have hitherto supported it, have believed Christian influence is to underlie the best mental culture. They have been and are no more sectarian than these. They have given time, counsel, money to start here an institution of higher learning. They open its doors to Christians of every connection, to ... the ... facilities of Methodists. They allow the largest diversity of opinion and connection in its board of trustees. The organic law and the inward spirit of our college seem to me to be the highest ... catholic.

Progress of note is impossible until the club house referred to in Mr. Black's article is built. Colorado college is worth more to this city than any dozen possible factories. Its possibilities of advantage, even pecuniarily, are greater than any new railroad. Let us rally to its support. Let the needed $20,000 be speedily forthcoming.

Sincerely yours,
RICHARD MONTAGUE.

It is asserted on well known authority that for fattening cattle and especially for increasing the flow of milk in cows, the pressed cake from cotton seed gives the best results. AN ORDINANCE.

An ordinance to amend an ordinance entitled "An ordinance concerning the connecting and using of drains or sewers with the public sewers of the city, its laterals or appurtenances."

Be it ordained by the City Council of the city of Colorado Springs —
